

Brand new exhibitions

Brand new exhibitions

© 'No Comply: Skate Culture and Community'

Skating has had a massive, though largely overlooked, impact on contemporary culture. This exhibition will give it some long-overdue attention, with a collection of photography, film, design and fashion, all about life on four wheels and a plank of wood. Gnarly.

→ Somerset House. Until Sep 19. Free, book in advance.

© 'Joy' and 'Tranquility'

The Wellcome is back with its signature mix of science and art, this time pointing the microscope and the paintbrush at the concept of happiness. The museum's 'On Happiness' season is opening with two exhibitions, 'Joy' and 'Tranquility', each featuring immersive installations, historical objects and art by the likes of David Shrigley and Amalia Pica.

→ Wellcome Collection. 'Tranquility' until Jan 9 2022; 'Joy' until Feb 27 2022. Free.

© 'Bellotto: The Königstein Views Reunited'

Bellotto's five views of a hillside city south of Dresden are brought together here for a monumental, panoramic, dramatically visual experience. This was the Italian landscape painter at the absolute peak of his powers, and each work is a bold, eye-tingling, ambitious statement of his talents.

→ National Gallery. Jul 22-Oct 31. Free, but book your ticket in advance.